

The false-premise niche does not survive its own control

Long-form probes with real-subject twins in identical surface forms, so both sides are fluent and discursive.
Every fuzzy family stays well below the output-distribution baselines once template is matched.

